made such a stir in the courts a year ago. Miss Doughty asserted that Mr. Vreeland was the father of the youngster, who was named Harry Doughty Vreeland.

The baby was born Aug. 27, 1892, and it died Jan. 30. For a time it was in the charge of Mrs. May Bradford, of 181 West Sixty-third street, who said she had adopted it, and the case rame into court through the efforts of the mother to get possession of the child. She alleged that there was a conspiracy between Mr. Vreeland and Mrs. Bradford to keep the child from her.

Mr. Vreeland denied that he was the father of the child, and declared that an attempt was being made to blackmail him.

There was a fight over the body of the baby while it rested in its tiny casket, but the mother did not get possession of it, and it was finally buried by Mrs. Bradford in Mount Olivet Cemeters. Since then the case has been hashed up, and nothing more has been heard of the claims of Miss Doughty againts Mr. Vreeland.
